This research discusses the types of human rights violations that occurred in a utopian community and how these human rights violations later had an impact on Lois Lowry's The Giver. This research uses descriptive analysis. The data obtained in this study was generated based on reading books and quoting the required narration or dialogue. This research is supported by United Nations' The Concept of Human Rights and Abraham Maslow's Hierarchy of Human Needs. The content of this research shows how The Concept of Human Rights and Hierarchy of Human Needs are instruments for identifying human rights violations that are considered to have occurred within the community in the book The Giver by Lois Lowry. The results of the research show there being various types of human rights violations that occur in the community and their impacts.
