Abstract

*This research aims to analyze the effect of coaching on Human Resources (HR) competency in the Sampoerna Retail Community MSMEs in the East Cilacap area. The sample collection technique used was quota sampling with a total of 105 respondents. The data collection technique uses a direct questionnaire which has been tested for validity and reliability. The tests used in this research are descriptive analysis, instrument tests (validity and reliability tests), classical assumption tests (normality tests, linearity tests, and heteroscedasticity tests), hypothesis tests (t tests), and Adjusted R². The results of this research show that coaching has a significant and influential effect on HR competency.*
