TRANSPORTATION

The Metro of Lisbon is a relatively cheap and fast way to get around Lisbon. The price of one trip through Lisbon by metro, bus or tram ranges from 1.25-1.40 EUR depending on if you buy an occasional ticket or a 'zapping' card. The Lisbon Metro has four main lines, signaled by different colors: Yellow line, Green line, Blue Line and Red Line. You will find more information in the Proceedings Book or visit the Lisbon metro website: <http://www.metrolisboa.pt/>.

From/to Airport

If you are arriving by plane in Lisbon and it is still day time, it is almost always better to use public transport - buses or the metro system.

Metro costs about €1.90 from the airport to any place in the city centre. The journey takes about 25 minutes to get from the Airport to Baixa-Chiado (Lisbon city centre).

Aerobus operates three routes to main spots of the city. Aerobus 1 running every 20 min follows Av. da Republica and Av. da Liberdade to the city center and railway/ferry terminal at Cais do Sodré.

Aerobus 2 connects to the Oriente bus/railway terminals with 30 min interval.

Aerobus 3 runs every 30 min to the central bus station at Sete Rios via the Entrecampos train station.

Tickets cost €3.50 and are valid on all public transportation lines, such as buses and surface trams (but not for metro) for one day.

ABOUT LISBON

Lisbon is an historic capital with 800 years of mixed cultural influences, most likely founded by the Phoenicians but styled by the Moors who ruled here for 450 years. The city was re-conquered by the Christians in the 12th century and Lisbon became the Portuguese capital in the 13th century. The Portuguese age of discoveries and the rule of King Manuel I marked Lisbon unique architectural style, with its typical use of maritime motifs.

The city was almost completely destroyed by the earthquake of 1755, and it was rebuilt by Marquise de Pombal, who thus created the Baixa Pombalina, a commercial area that still retains much of its original lay out.

Monuments

Among the many historical places to visit in Lisbon, we suggest St. George's castle ('Castelo de São Jorge'), where the city began in 1147, after its conquest from the Moors and the monuments of the Age of Discovery, like the Belem Tower ('Torre de Belém') and the Jerónimos Monastery ('Mosteiro dos Jerónimos').

You can also visit the various historical places, including churches, monasteries and chapels dating from the 10th-11th centuries and the city and the Terreiro do Paço and the Baixa Pombalina.

TOWER OF BELÉM

Inscribed on UNESCO's World Heritage since 1983, it is one of the jewels of architecture from the reign of King Manuel. It was strategically built as a defense system in the 16th century.

JERÓNIMOS MONASTERY

Inscribed on UNESCO's World Heritage since 1983 and declared a National Monument in 1907, it is commonly considered to be the "jewel" of the Manueline style and a symbol of the golden age of Portuguese Maritime Discoveries. The main façade of the building is over three hundred meters long and was built from Lioz limestone.

Museums

Lisbon has over fifty museums waiting for your visit. We suggest the National Museum of Ancient Art, the National Coach Museum, the Fado Museum, the National Tile Museum, the museums of the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation, among others.

Shops with Tradition

In Lisbon you can find shops which are infused with history and culture, some of which having their origins in the Pombaline era (18th century) and earlier periods. These traditional shops include tea and coffee shops, bakeries, wine shops, old bookshops and other.

You can delight yourself with the aromas of the traditional coffee and tea blends; taste the Portuguese typical and delicious pastry, as well as the Portuguese wine, spirits and liqueurs and discover Portuguese traditional preserve food brands with reproduction of original packaging. You can also visit the charming old bookshops and retrieve childhood memories in shops with handmade reproductions of antique toys of wood and tin.
