Abstract

The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of personal selling and sales promotion on the decision to buy a stand at the Atrium Sleman City Hall. This study uses quantitative methods with the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences (SPSS) window version 25 program. The data were obtained through questionnaires and interviews. The sample used is as many as 50 people who have participated in exhibitions at Sleman City Hall. The tests used are validity test, reliability test, normality test, multicollinearity test, heteroscedasticity test, multiple linear regression analysis, F statistical test, coefficient of determination and t statistical test. The results of this study indicate that there is a positive effect of personal selling on the decision to buy a stand at the Atrium Sleman City Hall. This is evidenced by the t statistical test, the personal selling variable has a tcount of 2.126 with a significance value of 0.039 <5% confidence level or 0.05, meaning that there is a significant influence between the personal selling variable and the purchasing decision variable. There is a positive effect of sales promotion on the decision to buy a stand at the Atrium Sleman City Hall. This is evidenced by the t statistical test, the sales promotion variable has a tcount of 2,680 with a significance value of 0.01 <5% or 0.05 level of confidence, meaning that there is a significant influence between the sales promotion variable and the purchasing decision variable. Suggestions for Sleman City Hall Companies are to pay more attention to the most dominant variable in purchasing decisions, namely sales promotion. Meanwhile, for the company researchers, Sleman City Hall, the personal selling variable is increasing, especially in the indicators of having friendly encounters with customers and handling customer objections.
