This final paper entitled A Study of English Prefix dis- in the novel The Alchemist by Paulo Coelho is aimed at finding out the structures and the functions of prefix dis- in a word. This study belongs to a qualitative research because the data were in the form of the text and the data were not analyzed by using any statistical procedure. The data were taken from a novel entitled The Alchemist by Paulo Coelho.

The data were collected through reading, underlining and putting them into a file. The data were analyzed by the procedure of data reduction, data display, and conclusion drawing and verification (Miles and Huberman, 1994: 170-175).

The findings of the paper shows that the structures of prefix dis- can be in the form of $dis + X = disX$, $dis + X + ed = disXed$, $dis + X + y = disXy$, $dis + X + ing = disXing$, $dis + X + ful = disXful$, $dis + X + ment = disXment$, $dis + X + ence = disXence$, $dis + X + y + s = disXys$. The functions of prefix dis- found in this study are to negate verbs, adjectives and nouns.

Key words: prefix, dis, function, structure, novel
